BIOGRAPHY

Vincent Coughlin is an attorney with Rainone, Coughlin, Minchello, LLC, where his practice focuses on matters involving municipal and local government law. He represents and advises public-sector clients on a variety of legal matters and assists with the preparation of briefs, motions, ordinances, resolutions, and other legal documents.

Prior to beginning his legal career, Vincent spent more than a decade in sports broadcasting, primarily with CBS Sports Network in New York. As an Associate Producer of Outside Productions, he worked on the coordination and production of live and recorded sporting events, overseeing broadcast elements and working across departments to ensure successful productions. His broadcasting career also included play-by-play and sports reporting experience, including work with Seton Hall University's WSOU and the Brooklyn Cyclones.

Vincent earned his Juris Doctor from Rutgers Law School in Newark, New Jersey. He received his Bachelor of Arts in Broadcasting, Visual and Interactive Media, with a minor in Political Science, from Seton Hall University.

Vincent is a graduate of the Woodbridge Township school system and currently serves on the Woodbridge Township Board of Education.
